

SPEAKER 1: There are a few large trials specifically on photopheresis in CTCL, but many centers or countries have reported their own findings. In the UK, we recently reported on over 100 patients with CTCL that should received photopheresis and found response rates were consistently around 60% to 70%.

A large meta-analysis by the UK Photopheresis Society found similar response rates in a number of single-center or multi-center smaller studies, which showed response rates again around 60% to 65%, with a number of complete responses between 0% to 20%.