

BroadcastMed | Following weight loss surgery will I need to take supplements?

NOEL A. Frequently asked questions, number one, am I going to have to take supplements? And the answer to that is yes.

EMMANUELLI: So, postoperatively it's recommended that all patients take supplements. So regardless if they opt for having a lap gastric band or if they opt for a sleeve gastrectomy or a Roux-en-Y gastric bypass, you all will have to take some sort of supplement afterwards. Now, it changes depending on which surgery you choose to have. So there are some variations in the amounts and the frequency, but all patients will have to take supplements postoperatively
