

SPEAKER: I cannot stress enough the importance of adjunctive therapies. And principally what I'm talking about in these patients is airway clearance therapies-- getting patients to perform methods of trying to enhance clearance of secretions, perhaps with the addition of inhaled hypertonic saline as a means of trying to clear those secretions out-- and also to make sure that you're treating any other underlying conditions, such as reflux and aspiration and the like.